MILITANT DEVOTIONS—With rifles and machine guns resting on the barricade, Jews of an outlying Palestine settlement don prayer shawls and make their morning devotions. They had just come off 10 hours night sentry duty against Arab raiders. Work in the fields outside the town has almost ceased as settlers work to erect defenses.

CONTRABAND—Although bearing weapons is illegal in Palestine, this Jewish commando is well-prepared with hand grenades and Sten gun.

RECONNAISSANCE—Covered by their comrades behind the wall, members of the Palmach, striking force of Hagana, scout through a small Arab village they attacked in the belief that it hid an Arab band which had made repeated raids on Jewish convoys.

FALLEN FOE—A member of the Palmach searches the body of an Arab, killed during the Jewish commandos' attack on the village. Young Jews from 17 to 25 are recruited for the Palmach and thoroughly trained in commando tactics. Many of them are former soldiers.

State Department
Gives Breakdown
On Marshall Plan

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The State department estimated today that Great Britain might receive $1,760,000,000 of the $5,800,000,000 which the administration wants to spend in Europe during the first 15 months of the Marshall plan.

In addition to this 25 per cent slice of the outlay proposed for the period beginning April 1, the department gave congress these other tentative figures in the first official breakdown of the requested appropriations:

France, $1,434,000,000; Western Germany, $814,000,000; Italy, $689,000,000; the Netherlands, $705,000,000; Belgium-Luxembourg, $323,000,000; Greece, $186,000,000; Austria, $182,000,000; Denmark, $164,000,000; Ireland, $152,000,000; French-occupied Germany, $80,000,000; Norway, $34,000,000; Sweden, $33,000,000; Iceland, $13,000,000; the former German Saar area, $11,000,000.

SOME OMITTED
There were no allotments to Portugal, Switzerland and Turkey, which are associated with the 13 other nations in the Marshall plan. The state department submitted the figures to the house foreign affairs committee as what it called an "illustrative distribution." It noted that the actual sharing of funds, which might not be quite the same, would be made by an administrator yet to be appointed, if congress agrees to the administration's plan.

The tentative breakdown was provided in response to requests by Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) and several house members.

No attempt was made to figure how much American aid would be in the form of loans and how much in outright grants. Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas has told congress that 20 to 40 per cent probably would be in loans.

The calculations were contained in a 24-page set of tables, which undertook to show the total import needs of each country in terms of 29 classes of products for the initial 15-month period.

Also calculated were dollar earnings by foreign trade, funds expected from sources other than the United States, and finally the "illustrative" sharing of aid from this country.

Altogether, import needs of the Marshall plan areas were figured at $12,959,000,000, prospective dollar earnings at $4,941,000,000, and possible financing from sources other than the United States at $1,158,000,000.

The difference of $6,860,000,000 was listed as new United States funds. This exceeds the 15-month administration estimate but officials said the apparent discrepancy was taken care of in other calculations which included occupation costs.

The figures were based on the price level of last July 1. Douglas has testified that a 7 1/2 per cent advance has been calculated for rises since then, but state department officials told reporters that the actual increase of a selected list of commodities as been figured at 13 1/2 per cent for the last six months of 1947.

ALLIANCE PATROLMAN
Unhurt In Plane Crash
ALLIANCE, Jan. 20.—Patrolman Neil Maloney of the Alliance police department decided today that maybe it's better to leave flying to the birds.

Maloney, a student pilot, had been airborne just 25 minutes yesterday when the engine of his small airplane sputtered and gave up. The ex-Marine headed for the Taylor-craft airport near here and started gliding in for a landing.

The wind caught the little craft and Maloney's landing was anything but perfect. The landing gear was smashed, the propeller was broken and the fuselage was damaged.

Maloney crawled out of the wreckage and walked away without a scratch.

GOP POLICIES
ON TAX CUT DUEHouse Committee to Meet
Today To Formulate
Plan For Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Republican tax-cutting plans reached the decision stage today.

Speaker Martin (R-Mass.) called the house GOP steering committee to an afternoon session to shape party policy on the red hot domestic issue.

There was every advance indication the committee would:

1. Ignore the urging of Bernard M. Baruch to put off tax-cutting for two years.

2. Reject flatly President Truman's request for a $40 "cost of living" tax cut for everyone with an offsetting revival of the war-time excess profits levy on corporations.

3. Throw its weight instead behind a trimmed down version of the Knutson bill.

Knutson Will Force Bill
Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) of the tax-writing ways and means committee told newsmen he would carry into the meeting a demand that his $5,600,000,000 bill be adopted as the GOP tax slashing goal for 1948.

But high Republicans who would not allow the use of their names predicted the Knutson plan would be trimmed down—possibly to an overall cut of $4,000,000,000—with chief emphasis on lower rates for taxpayers in the low brackets.

Baruch's tax views were given yesterday to the senate foreign relations committee in connection with the elder statesman's support of the European Recovery Program.

The adviser to Presidents suggested all tax cuts be postponed for two years and a modified form of the war time excess profits taxes on corporations be restored.

After two years, Baruch said, "a five year orderly reduction of personal and corporate taxes, combined with the systematic, substantial lowering of the nation's debt," would be in order.

As Baruch addressed the senate committee, Secretary of Commerce Harriman backed up President Truman's tax plan before the house ways and means committee, which recessed today so its GOP members could attend the steering committee session.

Opposition to any "material reduction" in income taxes now came also from the American farm bureau federation. In a statement filed with the ways and means committee, the federation said farmers "are willing to forego a temporary gain with the hope of obtaining the long-time objective of greater stability in prices and in our domestic economy."

Akron U. President
Defends Policy

AKRON, Jan. 20.—Student fact-finders who assailed the University of Akron's athletic program last week will air their views tonight over Station WHKK following an expression by the school's president of "complete confidence" in athletic policy and personnel.

President Hezlet E. Simmons, answering a booklet of criticism from the student investigators, said:

"I have complete confidence in this policy and in the personnel and ability of our athletic committee of the faculty to administer this policy."

The current policy, formulated in 1939, has produced some good results and furnishes the mechanics for improvement in all athletics, the president said.

The students, who made public their long study in an assembly program, recommended the football coach resign, the athletic director limit himself to coaching basketball and the athletic committee headed by an "athletically minded" person.

DULLES TELLS
OF ERP NEEDSApproves of Marshall Plan;
Testifies in Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—John Foster Dulles, Republican foreign affairs expert and a U. S. delegate to the United Nations, today described the administration's proposed European Recovery Plan as a "step towards peace" and said the United States "cannot long survive as a mere citadel of self-indulgent privilege, surrounded by massed human misery."

Appears in Committee
Appearing before the senate foreign relations committee, which is holding hearings on the Marshall plan for aid to 16 Western European nations, Dulles said that the "free states of Europe" are "in a state of convalescence" from war-inflicted wounds and that "Soviet leaders are trying, but every art short of new war, to assure that those wounds will prove mortal."

Such an effort by Soviet leaders, Dulles declared in a prepared statement, "will probably succeed unless the United States does something to help these convalescent countries regain their health." He added that the program offered by Secretary of State Marshall "is designed for that."

Dulles said it would be a "fool's paradise" if the United States did "not make honest, substantial efforts to help others to lift themselves out of the morass into which they have fallen." He called such an aid program by this nation "enlightened self-interest."

Answering those who would reduce the nearly $7,000,000,000 which it is proposed that the United States spend in the initial phases of the aid program, Dulles said:

"I am confident that if in the name of economy the European Recovery Program is abandoned, or made inadequate, that will involve our nation in future costs far greater than any present saving."

He said Soviet leaders "believe that, in Europe, free institutions are tottering, and that if they are given a few well-timed pushes, they will fall. The Communist party stands ready, able and willing to deliver these blows."

Dulles said Europe's "political disunity is causing economic havoc" and urged "some sort of a customs and monetary union between all, or groups, of the Western European states, including Germany."

City's Fire Loss Rose
To $36,617 During '47

Fire losses in Salem rose to $36,617 in 1947 as the department answered 146 calls to protect property valued collectively at $588,000, Chief Vincent Malloy revealed today in his annual report.

Losses in 1946 were $23,573.65 on 180 calls to fires at property valued at $944,475.

In 1947 the property loss was divided $25,574 to buildings and $11,043 to contents.

Malloy estimated that buildings endangered were valued at $432,150, while the contents protected totaled $155,850.

Other statistics noted by the chief show that 13,500 feet of booster hose was laid in the 146 calls, 4,650 feet of two and a half-inch hose, and 400 feet of newly-adopted one and a half-inch hose. The department used seven and a half gallons of chemicals in fighting fires in 1947.

False alarms during the year fell to four from 10 to the previous year. In 1945 there were 12 such alarms.

Malloy again cautioned Salemites to report fires correctly. He urges anyone calling the department to give the street and house number, rather than by identifying themselves by name, and to be sure to call the fire department by its correct number, 3431.

This, the chief said, will avoid errors in locating fires at a time when seconds count.

HEARS ARMY'S
INFLATION COSTSenators Hear Army Purchasing Officer's Views
On Price Control

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Col. Philip Smith, an Army purchasing officer, said today that a 90 percent price increase for supplies during the last nine months has cost the Army about $250,000,000.

Smith told the senate banking committee, studying bills to check inflation, that of all pending legislation to stabilize prices, measures to impose price controls at wholesale would be "of most benefit to the armed services."

The Army officer emphasized this was his own opinion and that he was not speaking for the Army department.

Before the hearings were resumed, Committee Chairman Tobey (R-NH) came out in favor of a "get-ready" meat rationing law. A bill to authorize the agriculture department to set up the necessary machinery is before the group.

Called On Oil
The committee called Smith to testify on how much oil the military is shipping out of the country and where it is going. Smith said he could not help much on this, but that Rear Admiral W. M. Gallagher, scheduled to appear later in the day, probably would know.

Tobey asked whether Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royal, ever has approached Smith on oil matters. Smith said Pauley hasn't. Pauley, an oil industry executive, has figured prominently in a senate committee's investigation of speculation in grain.

Senator Buck (R-Del.) asked whether Pauley ever gave Smith "any tips on the commodities market."

"No, sir, he did not," Smith replied.

But Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich.), who heads the house banking group, said he still is opposed to granting President Truman any more cost of living powers "until we see what he makes of the powers we already have given him to control inflation."

Actually the legislation sponsored by two of Wolcott's Republican colleagues, Senator Flanders (Vt.) and Rep. Javits (N.Y.), simply would authorize the administration to get ready for meat rationing.

Their bill would let the agriculture department go so far as to print ration books, but congress could veto any move to put the program into effect.

The two banking committees constitute the first hurdles the Flanders-Javits bill must clear before it can be considered by both the senate and house.

Will Support Bill
Tobey refused to commit himself on the measure during the weeks it was being drafted. But he told a reporter today he will support the bill, even though he has not decided whether the next step—actual rationing—should be taken.

"Getting ready in case we do need rationing is only taking time by the reins."

Hirohito Is Still Solvent Despite $66,000,000 Tax

TOKYO, Jan. 20.—The Japanese people in effect have given Emperor Hirohito another vote of confidence. They did it by showing obvious and genuine relief as former Premier Hiroki Tojo whitewashed the Emperor before the international war crimes court.

Fighting for his life, Tojo insisted that Hirohito had no responsibility for the war, even while giving evidence that seemed to indicate the Emperor had a part in reaching the decision to fight.

Newspapers throughout Japan hammered "Emperor free of war responsibility," and Japanese everywhere seemed highly pleased. Tojo's word was generally accepted by Japanese as assurance that Hirohito could not be incriminated.

New Limited Financially

This adulation is one of the few perquisites retained by the imperial family after its conversion into a paying individuals forced to live for the first time on a fixed and closely supervised income.

Hirohito—the Japanese government said—started the new year as one of the few Japanese who paid all of his tax bill. It totalled $3,338,207.72 yen ($66,764,134) or 90 percent of his assessed assets.

He paid it by turning over Imperial palaces, vast tracts of forests and other income estates owned for generations by the Imperial household. He retained an estimated 400,000,000 yen ($8,000,000) worth of personal possessions and imperial treasures.

The diet voted the Imperial family 45,000,000 yen ($900,000) as its first year's fixed income. From this budget, the Imperial household ministry must maintain Tokyo's Imperial palace and such detached palaces as the Emperor chooses to occupy with the government's permission. The Tokyo palace staff recently was reduced to about 1,000 persons—about a fourth of what it used to be.

Reduce Royal Status

All this resulted from policies of the Allied occupation designed to strip the Imperial court of special privileges.

Only the Emperor and his immediate family, of the formerly extensive Japanese royalty, retain that status.

Hirohito and his descendants do retain unusual security on the throne, so far as the Japanese people are concerned. No political leader of any consequence yet dares to advocate abolition of the Emperor system. It will continue, unless the Allies force its elimination.

It is also unlikely that the Emperor will feel any real financial pinch. His subjects are not likely to tighten the purse strings further, of their own volition.

Even today, volunteers are booked through next fall for the "opportunity" to take leaves and clean the palace grounds here—at a consequent saving to the Emperor's purse.

Hirohito's numerous trips throughout Japan, incidentally, are also no drain on his funds; they are financed by local governments. The local governments also maintain some of his villas, including one in Kyoto which has been kept in top condition for years without ever receiving an Imperial visit.

And when the Allies depart, the Emperor may get back his private train and some additional automobiles.

The Emperor business is still a paying proposition in Japan.

NAVY LIMITATIONS CITED AFTER WAR

WASHINGTON—The U. S. Navy, largest fleet in the world, is operating today on the high seas with two battleships and one heavy aircraft carrier.

The Navy has about 30 combat ships afloat and 11,500 planes to fly in contrast to the 7,234 ships and 41,272 planes that swept the seas in World War II.

Aside from cutting down the wartime Navy to peacetime size, scraping, selling and turning over surplus ships to other countries, the Navy has another limiting factor—manpower.

The Navy recently had four battleships in operation, but for lack of manpower two were tucked away this month with 2,400 other ships and some 3,500 planes in the "moth-ball" fleet.

Except for the 15-ship Mediterranean fleet which recently got 1,000 more Marines, the rest of the floating Navy is from 15 to 20 per cent undermanned.

The two battleships are the Iowa, in the Pacific, and the Missouri, in the Atlantic. The aircraft carrier, the 45,000-ton Midway, is planted in the Mediterranean. It has 100 planes.

The Midway's sister ship, the Franklin D. Roosevelt, is now being overhauled in New York. And the Coral Sea, last of the trio of that class to be built, is about ready for a shakedown cruise. But whether there will be enough men to man it remains to be seen.

The Navy also has five lighter aircraft carriers in the Atlantic and six in the Pacific.

Navy manpower is now about one tenth of wartime strength. Enlisted strength is now 362,000 and a drop to 320,000 as expected by June.

Says Man Has Strange Powers That Work While He Sleeps

A strange man in Los Angeles, known as "The Voice of Two Worlds," reveals the story of a remarkable system that often leads to improvement in power of mind, achievement of brilliant business and professional success and new happiness. Many report improvement in health. Others tell of increased bodily strength, magnetic personality, courage and poise.

The man, a well-known explorer and geographer, tells how he found these strange methods in far-off and mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few travelers permitted to visit it. He discloses how he learned rare wisdom and long hidden practices, closely guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled him to perform amazing feats. He maintains that these immense powers are latent in all of us, and that methods for using them are now simplified so that they can be used by almost any person with ordinary intelligence.

He maintains that man, instead of being limited by a one-man-power-mind, has within him the mind-power of a thousand men or more, as well as the energy-power of the universe which can be used in his sleeping giant of man-power, when awakened, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments from the prolonging of youth to success in many fields. Strangely, he says that this power works best while we sleep, when proper methods are used.

The author states the time has come for this long-hidden system to be disclosed to the Western world, and offers to send his amazing 9,000-word treatise which reveals many startling results — to readers of this paper, free of cost or obligation. For your free copy, address the Institute of Mentalphysics, 219 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. 341-E, Los Angeles 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly, as only a limited number of the free treatises have been printed.

Couple Are Wed In Parsonage

Miss Betty Morrow became the bride of Mario Sonagere, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sonagere of Salem, in a single-ring ceremony marked for its simplicity, at 4 p.m. Saturday in the home of the officiating minister, Rev. R. J. Hunter, S. Union ave.

Miss Morrow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Morrow of Franklin st.

The bride was attractive in a teal blue street length frock, complemented with black accessories and a white rose corsage.

Mrs. Theima May attended her sister, and was attired in a blue suit, with grey, and wore pink shoes. Leule Sonagere served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Morrow was dressed in blue for her daughter's wedding, and used fuchsia accessories.

Following the exchange of vows, the Morrow's entertained friends of the two families at a buffet supper in their home. A four-tiered cake, topped with a tiny bride and groom centered the table, laid with a lace cloth, with tall white tapers at either side.

The groom saw 18 months service in the Army, mostly in Belgium. He and his bride are both employed at the Salem China.

Tucker Battling To Buy Furnace Plant At Cleveland

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—President Preston R. Tucker of the Tucker Corp., New Chicago automobile firm, says he will "fight to the last ditch" to buy a $23,000,000 surplus blast furnace and coke plant at Cleveland.

Declaring last night he felt he was being "shoved around" Tucker asserted his bid was "higher" than the one by Republic Steel Corp., only other bidder.

Republic Places Bid

Republic, which operated the plant during the war and now is leasing it, offered to buy the coke facilities for $4,748,000 cash and to lease pig iron facilities on a production basis, with a minimum guarantee of $25,000 a month and an option to purchase for $7,669,300. Tucker, 43-year-old former designer of racing cars, said his firm put in five separate "higher" bids yesterday. He said he was told it would take 10 days for the War Assets Administration to decide on the bids.

"I'm the high bidder and I want to be stalled around," Tucker said. "When they told me 10 days I began to feel pressure, a little stiletto, working."

He asserted "tag steel and auto lobbies" and "somebody in war assets" were attempting to block the purchase.

His principal bid was an offer to purchase for $8,000,000, with 20 percent down and the balance quarterly over a 10-year period with four percent interest.

He requested also that in event his firm did not get the plant, the successful bidder be required to sell him 20,000 tons of pig iron monthly for 24 months at "current prices."

WE, THE WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT
If you don't want people to say, "She certainly runs that family," don't do any of these things:

Use the word "my" instead of "our," when you are talking about the children, the house, or any of its furnishings.

Accept an invitation for your husband without consulting him first.

Volunteer his services. Or say carelessly, "I'll have Jim do so-and-so," instead of, "I'll ask Jim if he will do so-and-so."

Say, "I have decided," when talking about some decision that concerns both you and your husband.

Always be the one who decides when it is time for you and your husband to leave a party.

Keep your husband jumping to wait on you.

Point out your husband's duties as a host in front of the guests.

Make it clear to everyone that you handle the finances in your family.

Object when he corrects the children.

WIFE'S HELPER

Tell everyone how good your husband is about helping you around the house.

Criticize his clothes, his haircut, his grammar or his manners in front of other people.

Say how Jim wanted to do so-and-so but you insisted on doing such-and-such and it was a good thing you did, too.

Atomic Energy Formula Search Still On In Full

BY INEZ ROBB
INS Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—The day when some scientific genius will make up a batch of atomic energy in the kitchen may be centuries off—or just around the corner.

At the moment, Uncle Sam, who controls the only known way to create nuclear fission, is doing it the hard way.

All scientists and researchers now engaged in the government production of atomic energy are searching for an "easy way" to do it, according to W. E. Kelley, the civil engineer who is manager of operations for the U. S. Atomic Energy commission.

In the commission's carefully guarded offices in the Empire State building, Kelley today explained: "All of us are trying to find some easy method to produce atomic energy, a way that will eliminate the present vast and very costly industrial plants now essential to its production."

There may be no easier way to produce atomic energy than that devised in a race against time by American, Canadian and English scientists working in the United States during World War II.

But as long as there is a possibility that it can be stirred up in a teacup in the kitchen, the United States government dare not lag in its constant research for the easy way, Kelley said.

Hence the government is busy expanding its present plants and in building new ones, such as the Brookhaven National laboratory near Patchogue, L. I.

The strict secrecy enveloping the activities of the U. S. Atomic Energy commission is plainly and impressively evident the moment one steps from an elevator onto the fifty-ninth floor of the Empire State building.

A polite and businesslike policeman asks the visitor what he is doing at the commission's headquarters. A pistol in a holster is the guard's most conspicuous bit of decoration.

If the visitor has proper identification, he can go about his business, with the commission. But everyone, without exception, must sign in with the girl who guards the threshold.

The visitor is then given a slip of paper. It must be signed by the person with whom he says he has business and returned to the girl at the threshold before the visitor is allowed to depart.

Chain Letter Warning
Issued By Postoffice
Postmaster A. E. Beardmore today warned the public of a renewal of chain letter schemes.

One scheme involves the sending of merchandise such as aprons, towels, wash cloths to the person whose name appears on the top of the list.

Another scheme with a new wrinkle which is becoming prevalent is the hand to hand exchange of a list of names with the sum of money which is to be sent to the person at the top of the list sent.

Beer Income Reported
How much wine and beer was sold? State Treasurer Don H. Ebright will soon report that Ohio's income from 3.2 per cent beer stamps was $2,554,352; from hi-powered beer stamps $16,844,738, and from stamps on wine and mixed beverages, $1,767,433.

That totals $21,166,000—and remember, that's the stamp tax alone. Add to that the $3,478,823 collected in gallonage taxes on the more potent spirits and the $6,872,788 paid for licenses. Then tack on some 16-1/2 millions for the profit from the liquor monopoly, although that figure hasn't yet been tallied. You will get the $3 millions, with a few bucks left over.

As to profit, there seems to be some argument. State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson—who happens to be a Democrat—insists that it's just an even 10 million dollars, because that's all the liquor department turned in.

But Liquor Director Dale Dunifon—who just happens to be a Republican—reports that profits have reached $14,578,254 by the end of November, with December, boosted by Christmas buying, still to be figured.

How much December will provide probably won't be known accurately for another two weeks. But December of 1946 produced a net take of $2,183,668, and it's reasonable to suppose that December of 1947 will produce a like amount.

The cost of liquor sold for the year ended December 1—a full 12 months period but not the calendar year 1947—totaled $106,275,337, while operating expenses for the same period were $3,543,007.

Ohio's take probably was increased by quite a bit also by the three per cent sales tax collected on every drink of wine and whiskey sold over a bar. However, the exact amount actually taken in in this fashion cannot be known, since bars are included in the same sales tax classification as other restaurants.

ations for the U. S. Atomic Energy commission.

In the commission's carefully guarded offices in the Empire State building, Kelley today explained: "All of us are trying to find some easy method to produce atomic energy, a way that will eliminate the present vast and very costly industrial plants now essential to its production."

There may be no easier way to produce atomic energy than that devised in a race against time by American, Canadian and English scientists working in the United States during World War II.

But as long as there is a possibility that it can be stirred up in a teacup in the kitchen, the United States government dare not lag in its constant research for the easy way, Kelley said.

Hence the government is busy expanding its present plants and in building new ones, such as the Brookhaven National laboratory near Patchogue, L. I.

The strict secrecy enveloping the activities of the U. S. Atomic Energy commission is plainly and impressively evident the moment one steps from an elevator onto the fifty-ninth floor of the Empire State building.

A polite and businesslike policeman asks the visitor what he is doing at the commission's headquarters. A pistol in a holster is the guard's most conspicuous bit of decoration.

If the visitor has proper identification, he can go about his business, with the commission. But everyone, without exception, must sign in with the girl who guards the threshold.

The visitor is then given a slip of paper. It must be signed by the person with whom he says he has business and returned to the girl at the threshold before the visitor is allowed to depart.

Postmaster A. E. Beardmore today warned the public of a renewal of chain letter schemes.

One scheme involves the sending of merchandise such as aprons, towels, wash cloths to the person whose name appears on the top of the list.

hensive for the first time through the memoirs.

Mr. Hull's story is replete with previously unpublished quotations from documents, including many memoranda of his conversations with foreign representatives, as well as with his own reasons for initiating or following a policy and his own estimate of its results.

Mr. Hull frankly discusses his relations with President Roosevelt and clearly brings out the points on which they differed, as well as the points on which they agreed. Though at times they had basic differences, which he describes, their relations throughout were pleasant.

MR. HULL'S STORY, from the time Roosevelt offered him the secretaryship of state, until his resignation Nov. 30, 1944, emphatically refutes the statement sometimes heard that President Roosevelt functioned as his own secretary of state. Mr. Hull gives numerous interesting anecdotes of his contact with the President and generally throws new light on the extent of Roosevelt's participation in and knowledge of foreign affairs.

In addition, he discloses his political relations with the chief executive and devotes an important chapter to the events leading up to Roosevelt's decision to run for a third term, prior to which the President had wanted Mr. Hull to succeed him.

Mr. Hull deals fully with the foreign relations of this country in the 1930's and during the Italo-Ethiopian and the Spanish civil wars. He describes the genesis of the American policy of the moral embargo at the time of the former and of our adherence to the policy of non-intervention during the latter.

and to take steps to prevent its outbreak, if possible.

After war came to Europe Sept. 1, 1939, Mr. Hull describes the quickly moving foreign policy course of the United States and the efforts of his government to parry the effects of war in the Western Hemisphere.

A series of graphic chapters reveal the steps the government took just before and after the fall of France and how the United States rushed to the support of embattled Britain. He gives a full exposition of American policy toward the Vichy government, and its results.

He reveals the sharp resentment of the President and himself against Gen. de Gaulle and the difficulties created by de Gaulle in relations between the United States and Britain.

EIGHT CHAPTERS are devoted to a play-by-play account of the former secretary of state's conversations with Japanese representatives, as well as with his own reasons for initiating or following a policy and his own estimate of its results.

Mr. Hull frankly discusses his relations with President Roosevelt and clearly brings out the points on which they differed, as well as the points on which they agreed. Though at times they had basic differences, which he describes, their relations throughout were pleasant.

Russia. He described the pressure brought by the President and himself on Britain to prevent the signing in 1942 of an Anglo-Russian agreement which would have recognized Russia's claim to the Baltic states and part of Finland.

Mr. Hull devotes a series of chapters to the Moscow conference of October, 1943, which he attended and at which he was a material factor in bringing Russia into the projected United Nations organization.

He gives revealing accounts of his conversations with Stalin and Molotov. He likewise narrates the discussions with Russian representatives at the Dumbarton Oaks conference on questions such as the veto. Finally he gives his views on American-Russian relations and their development as of the time he left office.

AS PROBABLY THE chief exponent of the Good Neighbor policy, Mr. Hull devotes numerous chapters to the development of our relations with Latin America. He gives a comprehensive story of the Montevideo Buenos Aires, Lima and Havana conferences which he attended.

As might be expected from a man who devoted much of his 24 years in Congress to a study of the tariff, Mr. Hull dwells at length on the development of the trade agreements program, of which he was the author.

Mr. Hull's last chapter is in the nature of a parting word of advice to the nation, both an international and on domestic questions. He gives his thoughts on the preservation of democracy, and the attitude of the citizen toward the government, as well as on the role of the people in foreign affairs and on relations with other countries, especially Russia, Britain and the Latin American republics.

Throughout, the former secretary of state gives graphic characterizations of the outstanding personalities of his period, including Churchill, Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King, de Gaulle, and his colleagues of the cabinet, among them Secretaries Stimson, Knox, Wallace, Ickes and Morgenthau, as well as Undersecretary Welles.

ABOUT 85 PERCENT of the memoirs are concerned with Hull's tenure as secretary of state, but the first 15 percent contains important material for the reader and the historian. He gives many interesting glimpses of Woodrow Wilson while Hull was chairman of the Democratic National committee from 1920 to 1924, including excerpts from a number of hitherto unpublished letters from Wilson to him containing the stricken President's counsel and advice.

Mr. Hull has been assisted in the writing of his memoirs by an old friend, Lt. Col. Andrus Berding, former veteran foreign and Washington correspondent, and an Oxford university graduate. Mr. Hull and he have devoted two entire years to the writing of the memoirs, having begun their work Jan. 1, 1946.

Second Guessing

By DON E. BEATTIE
News Sports Editor

DEPARTMENT OF CONJECTURE
Salem High school has the "makings" of a truly great basketball team, possibly even a winning tournament team. This has fast become recognized in Salem and elsewhere in the district as a fact.

But there are still discordant notes among the personnel of the Quaker varsity—among the players themselves. The trouble should be ironed out here and now, while there is still time to repair the damage before those all-important tournament games begin in just a little more than a month.

The trouble is, perhaps, slight. But nevertheless, it exists and calls for remedy.

On Jan. 31, 1947—the year just ended—this column ran a pointed column by the Associated Press, Ohio sports editor, Fritz Howell. A portion of it apparently was missed, or read without actual comprehension, by some of Salem's players.

We run that portion again and trust the parties in question will refresh the pertinent words.

Howell said: "Every athlete, too, has a duty to be performed during the coming year. Whether you are a high school, college, semi-pro, or professional player, you are a hero to someone younger than you are."

"High school Freshmen look upon varsity players as something out of this world; High school players dream of the day they will be college players and college players look forward to the days when they will be professional stars, or watching the professionals in action."

Each picks an idol from the gang on the next step, and tries to follow his footsteps. If you forget the admonitions of your coach about smoking, breaking training rules, staking out too late—or anything else you shouldn't do—you may cause some hero-worshipping youngster to go astray along the same path. His thought is that you can do no wrong. He loyally follows your lead."

The above quotation applies to every high school athlete, especially when his high school is winning games, causing local enthusiasm and interest like Salem's team is today.

The idea behind Howell's statements is far more important than the pure and simple winning of games.

At the present time Coach Miller and he didn't particularly want it known publicly—has having difficulty with at least two varsity members on training regulations. There is trouble, too, of a personal nature with one player.

Training regulations—not strictly enforced so far—have been obviously and needlessly broken. The breaking has not been confined to inconspicuous places. It has been flaunted before the public and consequently is definitely harming the morale of the team.

Miller plans action to put a stop to such irregularities. It may mean the loss of a player or two from the team.

the varsity. It may not, if the players involved come around and toe the line, as the majority of the varsity is and has been doing.

No one hopes to see a player discharged from the team. But if that is what becomes necessary to preserve the proper discipline, training and morale to win, Coach Miller certainly will do just that.

The decision remains with the persons directly involved.

Salem's basketball chances are good. It's hero-worshipping following is probably larger this season than in years. It would be a pity to have a category injured by a simple infraction that could be readily corrected by a change in attitude.

ODDS AND ENDS

Paul Avery and Joe Check will probably be the officials for the twin-bill at South tonight.

Salem fans are to sit on the south left side of the field house.

The Quaker foul shooting average to date is a poor 43.2 per cent. The locals have hit only 89 of 206 attempts.

That's 117 points passed by the boards.

"Nello" Baita is now among the "almost 300" group that is swelling annually in Salem. He just missed that perfect game by a pin, getting a 279 total. There has never been a perfect game rolled in Salem.

Barons Still Hot, Look For Playoffs

(By International News Service)
The Red-hot Cleveland Barons hit Philadelphia today, confident and cocky, and still looking for a playoff berth in the Western loop of the American hockey league.

If all goes as expected, however, the Barons will leave the "city of brotherly love" with a definite feeling of affection toward the city's lowly Rockets, and, it is hoped, a safe hold on third place.

The Barons will be shooting for their sixth in a row when they face the Rockets tomorrow night. Now only one point out of third, the

Stone Creek, 'B' School, Ends 63-Game Famine

Salem, Middletown, Ashland, Findlay Unbeaten In Ohio Class "A"; Pager Lauded

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20—Let someone else talk about Middletown and the other high school basketball powerhouses today—we want to tell you about Stone Creek, a little village nestled snugly in the hills of Tuscarawas county.

Stone Creek ended one of the longest losing streaks in history last week—a 63-game famine—by edging neighboring Bowerston 51 to 49. Center Verle Buehler could have been mayor that night, for he meshed 39 points to halt the headaches which had extended through the years.

But Friday night Stone Creek's winning streak halted at one, for Dundee clipped the upstarts, 61 to 45, despite a 24-point spurge by the same Buehler.

As Stone Creek enjoyed its momentary place in the sun, and then dropped back in the shade, the title-minded clubs rolled right on.

Middletown, Class A champion three of the last four years, notched its 10th in a row, 45-38 over Portsmouth, which dropped its third straight after seven consecutive wins.

Findlay ran its victory string to an even dozen with a convincing 44-19 conquest of Fostoria; Ashland whipped Sandusky 38-24; Toledo swamped Jefferson Union 74-22 for nine straight, and Salem stayed in the fight with eight victories as Big Bob Pager scored 36 points in the 60-40 victory over Warren Harding.

In Class B, it's Glenford by a country mile. The Perry county club paced by Glen Hursey and his 24-point average have won 19 in succession. Hursey snared 33 in the latest tilt, a 61-44 win over Zanesville St. Thomas.

Also unbeaten in Class B are Rockford 14, Middlepoint and Carbon Hill 13; Enon, Kingston and North Baltimore 12, Warsaw 11 and Sandusky St. Mary's 8.

Once-beaten clubs included Gilboa Blanchard 14-1; Lima St. Rose, Waverly, Courtland, and Hamilton Catholic 13-1; New Knoxville 12-1; Minister and Wheelersburg 11-1; Louisville 10-1; Canton Township and Columbus St. Charles 9-1; and East Palestine 8-1, and Massillon 7-1.

Canton Central Catholic was the hefty-scoring team of this week.

Cleveland club could pass idle Indianapolis with a victory.

Other games tomorrow night include Providence at Buffalo, Hershey at Pittsburgh, and Washington at Springfield.

Tonight's lone struggle sends the Hershey Bears to St. Louis.

the 57 points New Carlisle used to spill North Hampton 57-28.

Salem's Faver missed seven free throws in that 36-point spurge against Warren, scored 27 in the previous tilt against Ravenna, has a 177-total for eight contests, and, when he left the game against Warren, the crowd swarmed on the floor in an unprecedented ovation.

Glandorf, which ended Gilboa Blanchard's winning streak, has no home floor, practices in a small town hall room while playing all games away, and had won only three of 12 before the big upset.

Coach Lee Zierolf of Sandusky St. Mary's has seen his Saints win 254 and lose only 48 since he took charge in 1933.

Dick Messner, All-Ohio forward for unbeaten Rockford scored 41 points in Friday's 92-31 win over Neptune and is averaging 27 per game.

Tom Reipenhoff of Lima St. Johns also had a 41-point spree in the 93-36 walkover against Mendon. They're planning to move Saturday's games between Rockford (14-0) and New Knoxville (12-1) to Celina where 2500 may sit in.

FIXING OF GAMES IN GARDEN, RUMOR

CCNY Officials Get Tip On Game; Diddle Says Rupp Afraid To Play Him

(By International News Service)
NEW YORK, Jan. 20—A mild flurry swept Eastern Collegiate basketball circles today with confirmation of a report that the "fixers" again are attempting to earn a dishonest dollar on games at Madison Square Garden.

The gamblers were turned down flatly, but as yet nothing has been done about the matter officially.

Sam Winograd, director of athletics at City College of New York, revealed that City College authorities received a telephone call from Philadelphia before last Tuesday night's CCNY-Syracuse game in the Garden, tipping them off to an alleged fix.

Winograd declined to identify the caller but said he had prepared a list of names which covers the whole situation.

The City College authorities have his information, including the informer's name, he added. If any action is to be taken, it's up to the district attorney or any other interested New York City bureau.

The tip proved entirely unfounded when the angry City College players trounced Syracuse, 61 to 55.

Such an incident is bound to place an undue strain on all players performing at the Garden. In tonight's double-header, Western Kentucky clashes with Long Island University, and Colgate meets the crack New York university five.

Incidentally Ed Diddle, Western Kentucky coach, caused a bit of a stir by charging that Kentucky's Adolph Rupp is afraid to play his team. Diddle said:

"Rupp is afraid to play us because he wants to keep his price up. He doesn't want to endanger his prestige down South."

Strikes to Spare

A "grudge" battle of major proportions was held Sunday at the Bowling Center, featuring a match between local Bliss bowlers and several new plant employees lately of Brooklyn.

The locals walked off with the honors, turning in a 2905 series (six men), as compared to the "Bums" 2491.

Cady with 607 and Reese with 569, paced the Salem pinsplitters. Lee Lianna carded a 489 series and was high for the Brooklynites.

Although losing two of three games, O'Keefe's road team won a 34-pin decision on total score Sunday from the Mueller's Noodle team of Akron on the local lanes.

The totals were 2587 to 2533. High single game was scored by O'Keefe's with a 957 effort.

All five local keggers, Shepard, Adrian, Tubbs, Gregg and Richards, topped 500, Gregg and Shepard each notching 529 to lead.

Durocher On The Spot As Dodger Boss, Talk Implies

By JACK CUDDY
U. P. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—A dinner table double play from Burt Shotton to Rickey, emphasized today that Leo Durocher will be squarely "on the spot" next season as returned manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Although the verbal play was half-hidden in sentimental dust kicked up during a dinner at Burt Shotton, ex-pilot of the Dodgers, its implications were vividly obvious.

Speaking at the Baseball Writers' dinner in a downtown tavern, Harold C. Burr, veteran diamond reporter of the Brooklyn Eagle, praised Shotton for having directed the Dodgers to the pennant last season while filling in for the banished Durocher.

Burr concluded: "I expect to see you back at Ebbets' field about July."

To this the white-haired, bespectacled Shotton responded with grim finality: "I will not be back in July—nor at any other time. Never again will I ever manage a ball club."

This portion of Shotton's speech almost bowled over Branch Rickey, the Dodger prey who was sitting next to Shotton at the speakers' table.

As the dinner concluded, a reporter had Rickey's ear before Branch could leave his seat. The newsmen asked, "were you surprised at Shotton's statement about never managing a club again?"

Rickey's heavily browsed eyes gazed frankly through his glasses at the reporter and he replied: "I'll say I was surprised. And I'm sorry Burt said it. I know he meant every word of it."

"However, there's such a strong bond of friendship between Burt and myself that I'm positive he would come back to the Dodgers for me if I needed him as I did last summer — if a similar situation ever arose. Yes, indeed, Burt is a genuinely loyal friend. In spite of his statement tonight, I'm sure I could depend upon him to answer my call if I ever had to draft him again."

Then the Mahatma of Montague street did an about-face and smilingly assured the reporter that there was absolutely no need for anticipating any possibility of Shotton's having to return to Brooklyn. Branch was confident that Durocher would be at the Flatbush helm indefinitely.

Incidentally, when Rickey made his official speech at the dinner—before Shotton's talk—he recalled that he had tried in vain last April to get Joe McCarthy to manage the club, after Durocher's suspension. Idle McCarthy, however, was "either ill or already committed to the Boston Red Sox."

Then Branch had to fall back upon his long friendship with Shotton, as a reason why Burt should come out of semi-retirement to manage the Dodgers.

Shotton who came to New York from his home at Bartow, Fla., for last night's dinner, will be with the Dodger farm organization this year.

He will have charge of the Vero Beach, Fla., training camp for Dodger farm clubs. During the season, 63-year-old Burt will tour the farm clubs and instruct their managers.

Durocher, at home in Hollywood, Calif., modestly refrained from flying in to attend the dinner.

NEW COLUMBIANA CHURCH PLANNED

Jerusalem Lutheran Congregation To Launch Building Program

COLUMBIANA, Jan. 20—A brochure containing a picture and description of the proposed new church to be built by the congregation of Jerusalem Lutheran church was distributed to worshippers at the Sunday morning service. Construction is planned for this year, the 80th anniversary of the church on its present site at S. Main and Duquesne streets.

Plans include a sanctuary to accommodate a congregation of more than 400, a Sunday school department and all the other attributes of a modern church plant. Sunday evening, the architect, Arthur N. Steinmark of Bellevue, Pa., gave an illustrated lecture in the church, showing views of the exterior of the proposed church and details of its interior arrangement.

The present church building, remodelled some years ago, will be moved back and will be utilized as part of the new edifice.

The building committee, Ray Fisher, Roy Eckenweim, G. Charles Fisher, Thomas Gubert, Sr., Arthur Lennig, Sr., and Isalah Mowen, spent much time and traveled many miles at their own expense observing the design and structure of other churches, and consulting builders and architects. forelock." Tobey declared. "I am all for being prepared."

The Agriculture department has predicted a serious meat shortage by spring.

Truman several times has urged congress to grant the administration stand-by authority to restore rationing on a limited basis. He also wants power to reimpose wage and price controls, if necessary.

The senate banking committee has been holding hearings on various bills to carry out these sections of the President's 10-point anti-inflation program. It arranged to hear today a group of Army and Navy oil experts.

While Flanders and Javits drew fresh attention to the meat issue, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) was assailing Truman's entire economic program as "fundamentally the wrong approach."

The Ohioan, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, told American Public Relations Association yesterday "you increase demand by lowering prices and you decrease supply." He added that perhaps this course could be followed "for a few months, but in the long run the result is inflation."

Taft said the government might better bend its efforts toward:

1. Reducing federal spending and taxes.
2. Finding a solution to the problem of expanding bank credit, and
3. Reducing the wide margin between American exports and imports.

Referring to exports, Taft declared: "Before we start rationing our people here, we ought to begin rationing abroad, particularly outside the European area."

The Ohio senator called upon labor to "temper" its wage demands and urged businessmen to make every effort to hold prices down "even if wages go up another notch."

Leave Italy To Live

With Father At Lisbon

LISBON, Jan. 20—Dominic and Camilla Caruso, aged 19 and 15 respectively, have arrived here from southern Italy, to make their home with their father, Vincenzo Caruso, fireworks manufacturer who resides northwest of Lisbon.

The young people, who were united with their dad after 10 years, were overjoyed at coming to United States to make their home. They had resided with their grandmother following the death of their mother, and since the death of the grandmother in 1944 had lived with a married sister in Cimina, Italy. Neither of the young people speak English and find it somewhat difficult to express their gratitude and joy at the commonplace luxuries and conveniences with which the American life is filled. Dominic is a high school graduate and attended college at Calabria Reggio, expects to work with his father.

Although their father can converse with them, their stepmother, Mrs. Anna Caruso, who speaks both English and German, finds it difficult. However, they expect to soon master elementary English through the aid of a tutor, Mr. Caruso said.
